

EUROPE STILL WAITS THE END

Not Yet Decided Just What Stand England Will Take...Contraband Was Found

RUMORS OF A JAPANESE VICTORY

One Report Says Port Arthur May Fall At Any Time-- Garrison Reduced By Illness And Death To Twenty Thousand.

[Special by Scripps-McLure.]
Tokio, July 23.—The vessels of the Russian Vladivostok squadron were sighted yesterday on the east coast of Yokohama moving rapidly south.

Jap Victory
St. Petersburg, July 23.—Rumors are persistently circulating here that Gen. Kuroki has turned the Russian left flank and captured Liao Yang.

Much Reduced
London, July 23.—A Washington dispatch from Shanghai states it is rumored there the Japanese have captured the western fort at Port Arthur and are now within a mile of the main defenses, which they are bombarding. The Russian garrison is said to be reduced by fighting and sickness to twenty thousand.

Heavy Firing
Tokio, July 23.—A telegram was received this afternoon which reports heavy firing at ten thirty this morning off the Russo peninsula, which is at the east entrance of Tokyo bay. It is presumed the shots were fired by the Russian Vladivostok squadron.

Finds Contraband
London, July 23.—It is reported on the Stock Exchange that contraband has been discovered aboard the steamer Malacca, now at Suda bay, Crete. The contraband is said to be shipped at Antwerp and labeled "sugar."

Another Prize
Suez, July 23.—The Hamburg-American steamer Sambla arrived here today in charge of a Russian prize crew. It will proceed at once to a Russian port where the prize court will decide whether it is a prize of war.

Have the Protest
St. Petersburg, July 23.—The Russian reply to the British protest was handed to Ambassador Hardinge yesterday afternoon. Russia agrees that the Malacca shall not be brought before a prize court and undertakes that no similar incident shall occur in the future. As a matter of formality the Malacca's cargo will be examined at Suda Bay, island of Crete, in the presence of the British and Russian consuls. The Russian government having ordered the vessel to stop at Suda bay for that purpose.

A claim for damages as a result of delaying the steamer will be presented in due course through the British embassy. The report of the captain of the St. Petersburg, which has at last reached the admiralty, gives as his reason for summarily making a prize of the steamer Malacca too fact that the British master of the Malacca declined to produce the manifest of his cargo, as required by international law, when stopped by a belligerent in time of war.

Army Disheartened
Liao Yang, July 23.—His army disheartened by defeat in a desperate three days' battle, his communications threatened and his entire force in danger of being entirely surrounded, General Kuroki is at bay between Liao Yang and Mukden.

General Kuroki has broken through the Russian right wing and is marching on Mukden with 75,000 men. The fighting commenced July 13 and continued all through that day and the following two days, according to a dispatch from a Russian correspondent of the Daily Telegraph at Mukden, who, however, fails to locate the exact place of the battle.

The Japanese in greatly superior numbers attacked the Russians behind intrenchments with great daring and coolness. The battle waged back and forward, the Russians fiercely contesting every inch of ground they were compelled to give up. The Japanese artillery again showed its great superiority over the Russian, and the czar's men were mowed down by its deadly fire.

On the third day a desperate and daring bayonet charge by the Japanese put the Russians to flight, driving them from their breastworks in great disorder. The losses on each side are reported as very heavy, but no numbers are given.

More Captures
Suez, July 23.—Fear is expressed here that the British steamer Malacca, which was captured by the German man-of-war, the Goeben, for the far east, via Port Said, may have been taken by the two Russian volunteer fleet vessels in the Red Sea. Both ships have cargoes and mails for Japan.

London, July 23.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Standard wires that the Turkish government has instructed the Turkish commandant at the Dardanelles not to allow the British steamer Malacca to pass and has given instructions to notify the Russian embassy.

Russia Holds Her Ground
St. Petersburg, July 23.—The reason for the release of the British steamer Malacca is because a mistake was made in seizing that particular ship. It is claimed that the captain of the Malacca is himself to blame for the mistake. Had he shown his papers when boarded by Russian officers and answered the questions properly concerning his cargo, the whole trouble might have been avoided. Russia's position on the main questions involved has undergone no change whatever. The volunteer cruisers are war vessels and in the Russian view properly so. They will continue to act as such as long as their services are necessary to put a stop to the supplying of Japan with war materials. This, I am assured, is a position from which the government of the czar will not be moved.

Germany Feels Relief
Berlin, July 23.—There is a feeling of relief here over the more peaceful outlook in the Malacca incident. It is believed now that the crisis really has passed and the questions now at issue will be amicably adjusted.

France May Take Initiative
Paris, July 23.—There is some quiet talk that the French government may take the initiative in a move looking to a reference of the right to search, what constitutes contraband and other kindred subjects which are now open, to the Hague tribunal or to an international conference for final adjustment. It is said that Germany, Austria, Italy and the United States have already indicated their willingness to join in such a move and it is believed England and Russia would receive such a proposition in a friendly spirit.

Gain Victory Over Russians
Tokio, July 23.—The two days' fighting on July 18 and 19 ended in a victory for the Japanese, the Russian retreat degenerating into a rout.

Gen. Kuroki advanced last Monday, his object being to capture Khotung, a strong position on the Chi river, northwest of Moien pass and east of Anping. The advance unmasked the Russians, who retired northward along the Chi river, Gen. Kuroki following.

THE AFTERMATH

COSTLY FINGERS FOR THE COMPANY

Employee of The Northern Electric Works at Madison Places High Valuation.

[Special to The Gazette.]
Madison, Wis., July 23.—Four fingers at 2,500 each is the bill which Roy Montayne, a 17-year-old boy, seeks to collect from the Northern Electrical Manufacturing Co., of Madison. He has brought a suit for damages, seeking to recover $10,000 from the corporation, alleging that the company required him to work at a defective disc cutter and directed him to operate the machine in a manner making it extremely dangerous, so that he was injured in the employment, sustaining a crushed hand which necessitated the amputation of four fingers.

JAP SAVES LIFE OF A RUSSIAN

Sailor at New York Jumps Into River After Muscovite.

New York, July 23.—Thomas Wensenskiye, a Japanese, who has been in the United States for fifteen years and who has been for the last year on the training ship Portsmouth, the headquarters of the New Jersey Naval reserves, which is lying at the foot of Seventeenth street, Hoboken, saved a Russian from drowning. The latter's hat had blown off and he fell into the river trying to recover it. The Japanese, who saw the accident, did not wait to inquire into his nationality before plunging in after him. He would have drowned but for the Japanese.

STATE NOTES

Union papermakers at Appleton returned to work for one day, reporting to the brotherhood that the non-unionists were doing incompetent work.

An automobile party going from La Crosse to Chicago was stranded at Madison twice as the result of a broken driving chain. The party includes Austin Cargill, Mrs. N. W. Cargill, Mrs. W. E. Sawyer, and Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hauchett.

Mrs. Ida Belle Head, a singer of Kenosha, and Frank Joseph Pearson of Detroit were married.

John Gleiff, 17 years old, of Rhineclander, was drowned in the Wisconsin river Thursday night while bathing.

Charles Blake of Dodgeville, aged 70 years, a civil war veteran, was killed while working with a power hay fork.

The Hotel Racine has changed hands. Charles Schmidt purchasing the interest of his partner, W. T. Carlisle of Racine. The latter goes to St. Albans, Vt.

The Rev. Thomas Nicholas, pastor of the Welsh Congregational church at Dodgeville, has accepted a call from the Congregational church of Swansea, South Wales.

One man electrocuted and two others burned by live electric wires within a few hours in Racine, has caused alarm among them. They say that the telephone and electric light companies are to blame because too many wires are placed on poles and an insufficient number of side alarms used. The linemen will ask the council to appoint an inspector.

The United States training school committee visited three proposed sites on Chequamegon bay. The committee left for Duluth, where they will take the revenue cutter Tuscarora for the lower lakes.

AGAIN TALKING INCORPORATION

Milton Junction Much Disturbed That Milton Has Gone Ahead And Done The Same Thing They Want.

For sometime past both Milton and Milton Junction have talked of incorporating together. Finally the talk of a union of these two towns ended and now that Milton has incorporated Milton Junction is again seriously considering the question. The following extract from a Milton Junction paper shows how the citizens of this good town stand between the devil and the deep sea:

The matter of incorporation for this village has again become an important theme for discussion and is being talked over to considerable extent. While the committee has been steadily at work upon the matter they have as yet no statements for publication although it is quite likely that the matter will be brought up for the decision of the people in the near future. As usual many arguments are being made by the anti-incorporationists to show why the Junction should not incorporate. The chief of these is the statement that by remaining with the town the village will secure practically the entire farmer trade of the township, which is nearly always followed by the argument that the village can out-vote the township anyway. These statements will hardly be convincing for it is not likely that the farmers would give preference to a village which was constantly out voting them and requiring their tax money for its support. If the merchants of this village can give the farmers better values than the surrounding towns offer, incorporation will make little difference. Another argument made is that with incorporation a liquor license will be granted but this is not much more likely than without for there are as many farmers who would vote for license as against. Still another cry is the increased taxes and bonding the town for improvements. This, however, is a matter entirely at the discretion of the voters and taxpayers. The taxes now paid by the village would, if expended within its limits, go far toward improving our streets. In the matter of water works and fire protection the incorporation of both villages would do much. There is plenty of capital, both local and foreign, standing ready to put in a good system of water works as a private investment if a franchise can be secured from the incorporated villages. The only expense to the village being the hydrant rental for fire protection, which would be a good investment in any case.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES

The Barbers' union of Terra Haute has adopted resolutions denouncing the plumbers for putting on the 'fair list' eight saloons in which nonunion plumbers has done work.

William Prentiss of Chicago was the speaker for democratic day at the Joliet Chautauqua. The prohibitionists will be given a place on the program and the Chautauqua will close tomorrow.

A statement of the Dominion Iron and Steel company's strike in Sydney, N. C., is so unexpected, as the company announced that it would take back all its former skilled laborers who applied within three days.

ATTEMPTS TO END LIFE IN JAIL

Self-Confessed Iowa Murderer Inflicts Probable Fatal Injuries.

Sibley, Ia., July 23.—Fred Hokut, the self-confessed murderer of Peter Johnson, who has been confined in jail here for the last few weeks, shot himself in the stomach with a revolver. He is in a very critical condition and is not expected to live. The prisoner says he has had the revolver in his possession from the time of his arrest, but this is not thought possible. It is thought that the firearm was handed him by one of his relatives who visited him in his cell.

EVANSVILLE MAN CAUSES A STRIKE

Was at Work in Madison—A Union Man—Madison Union Objected.

[Special to The Gazette.]
Madison, Wis., July 23.—The city of Madison and all activities in which teamsters are essential are being held up by a local trust or closed corporation of union teamsters, who have limited their organization by a practically prohibitive fee. Because a non-resident union teamster, Clarence Hurland of Evansville, was employed in excavating for the new city fire engine station, the union teamsters went on strike, refusing to work with the non-local union man. The strike is disapproved by the officers of the united trades council. Hurland is a member of the national union and says he cannot afford to pay an initiation fee of $100 to get into the local group. The union has let down the fee to $25, but an issue has been made and the city and contractors are determined to maintain an "open shop" status in the future. Hitherto all city work in the teaming line has been done by union men.

Butchers Refuse Work

The cattle and sheep butchers had voted, at the close of the first strike, that if they were not reinstated in a body none of them would go to work. As soon, therefore, as the foreman at the Armour plant appeared to be choosing from the men before him and only taking a few, the stewards were instructed to investigate. They were told the foremen were acting according to the agreement, and the men walked out.

All through the yards the applicants for work found they were not wanted. Not 5 per cent of those who reported, the police estimated, were engaged. The stream of workers turned backward and marched angrily from the places where they had believed they were to be reinstated.

President Donnelly did not reach his office until 7:30 o'clock. He had thought, the night before, that the trouble was over, and he allowed himself time to sleep and rest.

Claim Discrimination.
Reports of the incidents of the previous half hour began to come to him at once. The men declared they had been discriminated against and that the companies were violating the agreement. When the action of the cattle butchers was made known to him Donnelly issued the order for the new strike.

Then he sent this telegram to the leaders in the other cities: "Call out men in all departments. The packers have violated agreements."

Believing this time for positive action had come the union leader then got George F. Golden of the packing house teamsters on the telephone.

"We want your assistance in a sympathetic strike," Donnelly said. "The packers have brought on another strike."

Golden hesitated. He said he did not want to call the teamsters without trying peaceful means.

"Let me arrange another joint conference with the packers first," he said. "Perhaps we can settle this without extending the struggle."

Secures a Conference.
Golden's next move was to communicate with the representatives of the employers, whom he found ready to meet the labor committee which had participated in the previous adjustment.

A program was mapped out by which, if no settlement could be made with the packers in half an hour, all the other trades except the stationary engineers were to be called out immediately. The labor men believed their hope of beating the employers was in hitting quick and hard.

DOVE OF PEACE IS NOT THERE

Conference Of Strikers And Packers In Chicago This Morning Does Not End Trouble

NO COMPROMISE CAN BE MADE

Each Side Stands Firmly For Their Rights--General Strike May Be Called At Once By Butchers.

[Special by Scripps-McLure.]
Chicago, July 23.—At eight-forty this morning a subcommittee of five men on each side were appointed by the strikers and packers to draft a new peace proposition to be submitted to the entire committee of the bodies, and went into executive session at Swift's downtown office. At ten-thirty the union leaders submitted to the packers a formal and written statement of their proposition and withdrew to allow the packers time to give the matter consideration. The stockyards district is quiet this morning. A few nonunion men are at work.

At Noon
The big strike is on now. The conference of packers and strike leaders failed absolutely to reach an agreement, and parted without making any arrangements for further peace proposals. The packers said they would adhere to the old peace agreement and take men back within forty-five days, but would make no other arrangement. The packers are preparing a statement for publication. The strike leaders called a meeting to plan an enlargement of the strike by calling out all affiliated trades.

Strike Is Renewed.
The strike began in the Chicago yards when the men reported back to work Friday morning. Two hours later it had extended, by the order of President Donnelly of the union, to all the plants controlled by the big companies.

When the 8,500 men and women, who expected to be put at the tasks they left in the earlier walkout, gathered about the establishments they learned that few of them were wanted at once. The superintendents looked over the waiting lines and pointed to some, who were immediately escorted into the buildings. Murmurs of protest arose from the workers. They demanded that they be selected as they came, without discrimination, as that was the interpretation put on the peace agreement.

Butchers Refuse Work.
The cattle and sheep butchers had voted, at the close of the first strike, that if they were not reinstated in a body none of them would go to work. As soon, therefore, as the foreman at the Armour plant appeared to be choosing from the men before him and only taking a few, the stewards were instructed to investigate. They were told the foremen were acting according to the agreement, and the men walked out.

All through the yards the applicants for work found they were not wanted. Not 5 per cent of those who reported, the police estimated, were engaged. The stream of workers turned backward and marched angrily from the places where they had believed they were to be reinstated.

President Donnelly did not reach his office until 7:30 o'clock. He had thought, the night before, that the trouble was over, and he allowed himself time to sleep and rest.

Claim Discrimination.
Reports of the incidents of the previous half hour began to come to him at once. The men declared they had been discriminated against and that the companies were violating the agreement. When the action of the cattle butchers was made known to him Donnelly issued the order for the new strike.

Then he sent this telegram to the leaders in the other cities: "Call out men in all departments. The packers have violated agreements."

Believing this time for positive action had come the union leader then got George F. Golden of the packing house teamsters on the telephone.

"We want your assistance in a sympathetic strike," Donnelly said. "The packers have brought on another strike."

Golden hesitated. He said he did not want to call the teamsters without trying peaceful means.

"Let me arrange another joint conference with the packers first," he said. "Perhaps we can settle this without extending the struggle."

Secures a Conference.
Golden's next move was to communicate with the representatives of the employers, whom he found ready to meet the labor committee which had participated in the previous adjustment.

A program was mapped out by which, if no settlement could be made with the packers in half an hour, all the other trades except the stationary engineers were to be called out immediately. The labor men believed their hope of beating the employers was in hitting quick and hard.

From the first, the whole dispute turned on the question of the discrimination. Donnelly, Kidd, Schardt and Morton, speaking for the union men, declared the employers had been unfair and had not heeded the agreement covering the point. The employers answered that if there was any violation, they should have been informed. Considerable heat developed in the argument. The packers retorted to the charges of discrimination that the men themselves had not lived up to the agreement.

Packers Make Claims.
"In St. Louis the strikers refused to go to work unless all the new men were discharged," Edward Morris declared. "Is not that a violation?"

Then the packers pointed to a second sentence of the agreement that seemed to indicate that they had the right to discriminate, as a means of settling differences in that respect was provided. The wording of the contract under which the men protested that they had not been treated fairly, follows:

"The packing companies signing this agreement to retain all employees now at work who wish to remain, and will re-employ all employees now out as fast as possible without discrimination."

The second allusion to discrimination is to the effect that any striker not re-employed within forty-five days shall have the privilege of "submitting his or her case to arbitration, on the question of discrimination."

Subcommittee Takes Up Problem.
Finding the whole committee too clamorous, it was decided to select a subcommittee from each side which should endeavor to draft a new peace proposition. This was to be in the nature of an interpretation of the meaning of the word "discrimination" and it was also intended to clear away all doubts as to the conditions under which the strikers were to be reinstated.

TWO COMMIT SUICIDE FOR MAN THEY LOVED

Jealousy Leads Women to End Their Lives Six Months Apart In Exactly Same Manner.

[Special by Scripps-McLure.]

Marion, Ind., July 23.—Six months ago Miss Cora Bowser killed herself because her lover, Ross Stevens, paid too much attention to Miss Bertha Ellison. Friday Miss Ellison ended her life because Stevens was paying too much attention to other girls.

Between the two suicides there are these remarkable parallels: Both girls killed themselves for the same man.

Both lived in the same house.

Both were engaged to the same man.

Both took morphine.

Each told a friend that she had decided that Stevens loved somebody else.

Each said that she had nothing to live for.

SOCIETY DAMES SHINE SHOES

Women Become Bootblacks for Day to Raise Money for Hospital.

Elkhart, Ind., July 23.—Elkhart's most exclusive society women turned bootblacks and shined the shoes of all customers for the sake of the hospital fund. "Shine, mister? Your nickel will go to charity," was the salutation with which the handsome dames and the youthful belles greeted the passing men. Soft hands, accustomed to the glitter of diamonds, glistened with shiny but black graphite and piled the brushes all day.

There never were so many neatly polished shoes in Elkhart in one evening as there were when the society bootblacks ceased their day of labor. The patrons were liberal with "tips" and the receipts of the day large.

The postoffice at Warrens was robbed of $100 in cash and stamps. The safe was blown open with dynamite. The school building at Appleton in district No. 12 was destroyed by fire. A brick building will be erected.

The Wagonwheel festival begins at midnight, Saturday, with the performance of a Puritan adaptation of "Tannhauser." Miss Isadora Duncan, the American dancer, participated in the ballet.

GENERAL GOSSIP ABOUT THE CITY

OLD FOY HAS A FEW PEARLY
THOUGHTS OF WISDOM

HE DEALS IN GENERALITIES

Discusses Many Questions Which Might Otherwise Not Be Thought of at This Time.

To the Editor: Where are our sidewalk inspectors? There are many sidewalks in all parts of the city which are badly out of repair. Walks which should long ago have been condemned and new ones put down. Walks that are a menace to the public welfare and safety of pedestrians. Property owners seem to think that an old walk can be patched up even after the nails refuse to hold in the rotten boards. All over our city these walks are to be found. A person looking for them could count fifty in an hour's time, all of which ought to be torn up and new walks put down. Board walks will rot in time no matter how well they were once constructed and a property holder's walk should be of as much importance as his roof and kept in good repair. So I ask where is the sidewalk inspector?

Those Squirrel Houses.
We now have squirrel houses in the park but where are the squirrels to live in them? It looks rather absurd to see these houses perched high up in the trees and no squirrels about. Let us import a few squirrels and give the vacant houses occupants and then have a stringent law passed prohibiting annoying these little animals. One thing that might attract the few squirrels in the city to these houses so kindly provided by law, is a good feeling of nuts placed inside them and on the end of the ledge. This would amuse to Mr. and Mrs. Fuzzy that these houses were meant for them and not for stray birds.

Are They Spooks?
There have been so many burglars scares these last few weeks that the question comes up, are all the noises heard by anxious women burglars or spooks? There have been such things as haunted houses and weird stories have been told of persons who have seen mysterious personages who merely pointed towards some object and glided away disappearing from sight through solid walls. Washington Irving has told the story of the Headless Horseman and scarcely a haunter house in England that does not have some mysterious visitor accredited to it. It wouldn't be stylish otherwise. So many stories of mysterious noises in private homes have been reported within the past few weeks that I merely suggest spooks or rats as a remedy for the evil.

Tough Characters.
There is no doubt that there are many mysterious strangers in the city this summer, more than ever before. The whole city seems to be overrun with gentry who look as though they would pick a pocket or the lock of a door as easily as ask for a meal. Lately the police seemed to waver to the responsibilities of the situation and gathered in several representatives of this wandering class and meted out justice to them. However, if they should fill the jail with the toughs that have reached the city there would be as big a complaint as though they let them go free. What we need is more policemen and we need them badly. We need one man who has entire control and responsibility and is not handicapped by the absence from the city of the nominal head of the department. We need one man to stay in the city hall all the time to answer telephone calls and find the other officers or answer the call himself and thus do away with any delay.

Must Come.
Despite the fact some people express themselves as entirely pleased with the manner the police department is being conducted I understand that even the police are not satisfied. Of course if a person has an ax to grind the complaisance with which the events of the day are conducted does not concern him but to the honest hardworking citizen police protection means a great deal. There must be a decided change in the police department sooner or later and they not sooner instead of later? The appointment of another officer has given the department more leeway and the parks are kept in better shape and order is preserved, but why not have two or three more officers and continue the good work? Janesville twenty years ago could be controlled by one man who had a big cane and knew how to swing it, but the population has increased and the police have not kept pace with the increase.

Up to Council and Board.
It is up to the council and board to discover if their constituents want more police and then act accordingly. It is not a question of personal favoritism to the ideas of a few or to the wish of one man that they are dependent but to the citizens of the ward they represent. If their constituents want more police why not give it to them. The taxpayers of Janesville are more important than one man or two men or even three men. They should have what they want and what they are willing to pay for without question. Ask the police themselves and see what they say. See if they honestly do not say

AMONG THE WORLD'S WORKERS

News Notes From Various Sources of Great Interest to the Workman.

The International Association of Machinists has just closed a contract with the Illinois Central railroad for the current year. The agreement is eminently satisfactory to both parties, and the closest relations exist between the machinists and the railroad company.

Northumberland, Eng., miners, at their annual council meeting, decided to apply to the coal owners for 2s. a ton extra for the night shift hewers, as their task is more arduous than day work.

Directors of various bridge building works in Motherwell, in Scotland, have given notice of reductions of 5 per cent. in day wages and 10 per cent. on piece rates of the ironworkers. The men threaten to resist the reduction by a strike. Several thousands are concerned.

International Typographical Union has withdrawn the charter from the Typographical Union at Talluride, Col. This action was taken on the complaints filed by the Typographical Union of Denver and Durango. The reasons of the withdrawal of the charter was owing to the fact that the printers participated in the deportation of miners from their homes.

All the women garment workers in the twenty-five shops in Chicago, 2,200 men and women, have been ordered to strike for the "closed shop" and recognition of the union.

Almost thirty-two millions of dollars has been paid in benefits of various kinds of the Amalgamated society of Engineers during the past 35 years.

A big labor convention will be called to meet at Victor, Colo., on August 25 by the Chicago Federation of Labor, as a means of encouraging the union miners. Every labor organization in the country will be requested to send two delegates with full power to represent their respective bodies.

All the colliers in the anthracite region which have been shut down since July 1, have resumed operations.

MAIL CLERKS AT A PICNIC TODAY

Northwestern Railway Postal Clerks
Enjoy an Outing Up The River Today.

Mr. J. C. Harlow and Mr. W. B. Morrison are entertaining a company of railway postal clerks up the river today in their launches Rambler and Canfield. Stops were made at Summer Days cottage from which place they took in the places of interest all along the river to Indian Ford. Stops were made at Crystal Springs, Buchholz park, Wyandott spring, Idlewild, Elm park, Ellendale park, Red Springs, The Narrows, Stone's bridge, and Indian Ford where lunch and fishing was enjoyed. The party then returned to Summer Days cottage for an early supper and will reach the city in time for most of the clerks to take the 7 o'clock train out again. The attractions of Rock river are becoming known more and more every year, and there are very few cities anywhere that can boast of as many launches and as good a grade of engines as we have here, and there is no city in the northwest the size of Janesville that has as many private power boats. The clerks here today are all employed on the line known as the Chicago, Elroy & Duluth R. P. O., passing through here on the C. & N. W. R. R. on the midnight and day trains. The following clerks were in attendance: B. Pollock, Monroe; J. E. Ferry and F. W. Moody, Waukegan; C. W. Ford, C. A. Schriener, J. C. Melroy, Chicago; Ned Schenfield, Monroe; John Anthes, A. Sanborn, Port Atkinson, and W. T. Schmitt of this city.

ACTIVITY IN THE TEMPERANCE RANKS

Prohibitionists Open Campaign in Janesville on August 3—Convention Next Wednesday.

Prohibitionists will open their campaign in Janesville on Wednesday evening, August 3. On that occasion Prof. Lough will address an audience in the courthouse park. The lecture will be varied by some musical selections rendered by the speaker and his wife who will accompany him. On Wednesday next the Rock county delegates will leave for Madison to attend the state prohibition convention. On the evening of July 27, Oliver W. Stewart, national chairman of the party, will address the convention. The latter has the distinction of being the only prohibitionist ever elected to the Illinois legislature. W. D. Cox of Milwaukee will probably be the temporary chairman. J. E. Clayton, chairman of the state central committee, has called a meeting for the morning of July 27.

THE SENTRY BOX

Permanent Postal Experts.
One of the obvious lessons deduced by thinking men from the overhauling which the postoffice department has received during the past year is that the time has arrived when some of the existing laws should be drafted out of the postal code. Our mail service, notwithstanding its seeming efficiency, has long been merely drifting with the tide.

The work of the system is managed by a department in Washington with a few responsible heads and a great army of assistants. It has been administered under laws that have grown up stone by stone as the builders have seen fit to put them in, almost wholly by irregular legislation attached to appropriation bills. For twenty years, The Sentry believes, there has scarcely been passed a well-considered and systematic postal law, yet within that period the number of functions has perhaps been doubled and the volume of transactions has increased manifold. Each of these new features has come in by a single clause or proviso or prohibition in an appropriation bill directly contrary to the rules of congress itself, which forbids new legislation in such enactments.

The result is that certain features have been added illogically; they have not been properly legislated about, and the hands of the department are tied by other provisions added from time to time at random, so that, to a great extent, they are conflicting and inoperative.

The system has been built up by fits and starts, and spurts on the part of departmental divisions and bureaus in Washington, and the whole department is subdivided into sections, each in charge of a man who is interested solely in exploiting and developing his specialty. This would be meritorious energy if all subordinates were equally energetic of their duties. But as it is, the energetic ones secure advantages while the inert ones sit still and do not grow. Thus some branches push ahead of others; the least meritorious, perhaps, getting advantages, while others more important are neglected.

Thus it has come about that this greatest business enterprise in the world, a function greater in magnitude of transactions and number of employees than all the other branches of the government combined, has no systematic, coherent, intelligent organization. It is a bundle of haphazard inconsistencies, needing at many points a master mind with a free hand to mold it into proper form. Prompt and decisive action, The Sentry believes, is needed to remedy this fatal defect. A shotgun policy in politics yields scattering dividends to a few cemetery stockholders—but is otherwise unprofitable. A gatling-gun campaign against postal corruptions and abuses will have to be made before congress and the people will be aroused to the importance of correcting the many evils hidden from general observation, but well known to experts in practical administration.

The investigation recently made has attracted public attention to some defects of the service, but it has only touched a small part of the four great bureaus of the department, and has accomplished little or nothing in the way of remedial legislation. It is to be hoped that at an early date a joint committee of the senate and house of representatives will take into consideration the reorganization of the whole system and make an attempt to put it on a rational, scientific basis. It will take a long time and require the highest wisdom of the best men in congress. They will need much outside help from persons familiar with the details of postal affairs, but there are plenty of good men in the departments and in the postoffices of the country who can be called upon for assistance.

One practical postmaster general a few years since publicly stated that if he were running his service as he would his own business he would have a board of three of the best men he could get in the United States at a salary of ten thousand dollars a year or more each. They would be "actuaries" with the duty of understanding and comprehending all the details, having a permanent tenure of office and giving their whole time and their best thought to its correct administration. This board would act as referee in all important matters, give advice as to the inauguration of new features, mature legislation, reorganization and reduce all bureaus and divisions to uniform and consistent operation.

They would, in other words, be the expert, reliable advisers of the postmaster general. How utterly impossible it is for him to learn all the details of all the work for which he is responsible can be readily gathered from the fact that the average term of that official has been less than three years, and that three-quarters of his time is absorbed in questions of politics and patronage having no relation to his real administrative duties. No railroad or other business corporation could be managed successfully on any such basis.

The postoffice department now transacts business aggregating more than one thousand million dollars annually. It must be put on a systematic business basis or it will be even more fruitful in the future than in the past in revelations of scandal and corruption. Remedies can only be applied by the lawmaking power, and it would seem to The Sentry that congress can have no more pressing duty on its hands than to take up and wisely mature adequate legislation on this subject.

THREE STAGES AND THREE RINGS.

All Used in the Barnum & Bailey
Show Besides a Race Track.

One can get a good idea of the magnitude of the Greatest Show on Earth by considering for a moment that three stages, three circus rings, and a race track are required to exhibit the 100 acts. Besides these, again, there are any quantity of aerial apparatus to enable the skilled artists to execute the thrilling acts in the air which are their specialties. Then there are two menageries, an elephant pavilion with three herds of big performing pachyderms, a drove of camels, herd of giraffes, cages of wild beasts, birds, monkeys, etc., besides all the curious and tame animals, llamas, alpacas, guanacos, and many others. And again there is a most delightful exhibition, which is performed in the menagerie—an exhibition of the most charming character executed by magicians, jugglers, and queer musicians, and by the odd people in the collection of freaks. Aside from the people, who of themselves are great curiosities, the entertainment is most praiseworthy. The exhibition of living curiosities given in the menagerie tent is an excellent one, and bristles with picturesque episodes and living, acting tableaux. The gorgeous Durbar is perhaps the greatest undertaking yet attempted in the line of great displays and spectacles, and the many Parisian sensations, such as looping the loop, of which, by the way, there are half a dozen, are thrilling in the extreme. The performances of the three herds of elephants in three rings are wonderful. The entire show is of exceptional merit and well worth a visit—in fact, it is worth a dozen visits, for no one can see it all in less. All will be here on August 1, when the splendid new street parade will prove an index to the delightful performances in the waterproof tents which contain a foot-rest for every seat.

THREE COMPANIES OF SOLDIER BOYS

Monroe, Whitewater And Beloit
Contingent of First Regiment Visited Janesville For Two Hours.

The Monroe, Whitewater, and Beloit companies of the First Regiment, Wisconsin National Guard, stopped over for a few hours in Janesville yesterday on their return-trip from Camp Douglas. They arrived at 4:20 and took their departure at six. Spanish war veterans' medals and sharpshooters' badges were much in evidence. The boys thronged the barber shops taking advantage of the stop-over here to make themselves presentable on their arrival home.

PLAN OF DRAWING FOR THE LANDS

System of Distribution of The Rosebud Farms Is Described as It Will Take Place.

To the Editor:
Will you kindly tell me how the land drawing for the Rosebud agency will be conducted? Where will the drawing be held? Will it be fair and above board and will persons who are not present at the drawing stand as good a show if they draw land as those who are at the scene of the drawing?
W. H. B.

In answer to the above the following clipping from the Bonesteel, South Dakota, News, is reprinted:

It has been determined that 1,000 names will be drawn a day for three days, after which the balance of the names in the box will be drawn as rapidly as possible, probably completing the work on the fifth day. At each of the places of registration every person who has had their name enrolled signs an identification blank, which sets out the name, address, height, color and general appearance of the person registering. These blanks are immediately sealed in a small envelope about two by three inches and deposited in a safe receptacle. Registration ceases at all the points of registration on July 23, when the envelopes prepared at Yankton, Bonesteel and Fairfax will be forwarded to Chamberlain. These, with the Chamberlain batch, will be placed in a large box, one sufficiently large enough to hold them and leave space in which they may be shaken up. A number of openings will be provided at each will be stationed a disinterested person, probably a boy, who in regular ratio will draw an envelope from his opening. As each envelope is drawn from the box the clerk will keep a record of the name and order of drawing. This will be continued until 1,000 names have been drawn out of the box each of the first three days. This will dispose of 3,000 names, or an ample equivalent for the number of claims on the Bonesteel reservation subject to entry. On the fourth day the drawing will be continued but without restriction until every name is drawn from the box. The drawing in effect merely takes all the names enrolled and places them in numerical order, and the names so placed in order will be called at the rate of 100 per day to make filings on the land at Bonesteel until all the lands are disposed of, filings beginning on August 8. While the numbers arranged at the drawing will be as extensive as the number registered, there will be no particular value attached to any number over 4,000, or possibly 2,500—as by the time that number is reached the lands will in all probability be exhausted, unless the holders of earlier numbers should fall in very large proportion to respond to their names when called for filing.

STRANGE SIGHTS AMONG WORKMEN

Rushing The Construction Work at The New Beet Sugar Factory
in Spring Brook.

Citizens of Janesville and the surrounding country who have not visited the old Paul farm where the Rock County Sugar Beet factory is being erected cannot imagine what a large plant is in the course of erection on this site. The company decided to move their Dresden plant to this city some months ago, the site was purchased by the company and plans were at once made to move their plant from Canada to this city. The different buildings were laid out and a necessary plan prepared for the erection of the large manufacturing plant in Janesville was commenced. Rapid progress has been made, as may readily be seen by a visit to the plant. The cooper shop, a two-story building of brick with the concrete cement foundation has been completed and is nearly ready for occupancy. The pulp house is a three-story brick building and work on the third is now being done. The iron structural work and machinery in the main building are also in place. The brick has been laid on the main building as far as the second floor; and fully one hundred masons are now employed on the job. The trenches for two more storage beet sheds have been dug and the foundation of cement is already being put in. The driveways between the beet sheds are now being filled in and will be paved with brick before completed. The company have in the neighborhood of two hundred and fifty men at work on the different buildings in the course of erection, comprising all nationalities under the sun. The foreign laborers number about fifty men and they are housed in a frame building on the grounds where they have all the comforts of living suitable to their race. The Hayes Bros. have finished their contract for the Northwestern company of filling in the tract of land between the foot of South Main street and the South Jackson street bridge where the company's spur track is rapidly being constructed. The officials of the Northwestern road say that the track will be ready for traffic within the next ten days.

COMRADES THREE IN BATTLE OF ATLANTA

Late Joseph Green Was Buried on 40th Anniversary—Laverno Nelson
And J. G. Wray Were Pall-Bearers.

Yesterday was the fortieth anniversary of the second day's battle of Atlanta, sometimes called the Battle of Leggett's Hill. It was on this day that General MacPherson, who had command of two corps of Sherman's army, was killed. Fifteen minutes before his death he was taking observations towards Atlanta, and noticed Laverno Nelson passing by with some empty canteens on the way to the spring, called to him and asked him to fill his for him. Mr. Nelson presently returned with the canteen and the great soldier took it and rode away. As he crossed a ravine into the woods below he was brought to the earth by a rebel bullet.

On Thursday, the fortieth anniversary of the first day's battle, the late Joseph Green, whose fate it was to survive that bloody fray and live forty years after to meet a horrible death on a railway crossing, was carried to his last resting place, Laverno Nelson and J. G. Wray, who were with him at Atlanta, were two of the pallbearers.

An explosion in a detached building of the Phoenix powder mill on the Southern railway, midway between East St. Louis and Belleville, resulted in the death of one man.

NATURE'S OWN REMEDY.

When the mountaineer becomes afflicted with any of the numerous ailments, he does not waste much time but goes directly to the woods for Nature's own remedies.

Yarrow, which dries is a standby for Coughs when it has been made into a wicked looking brew. Fir-balsam, coaxed drop by drop from the blisters which swell on the balsam at full noon is a sovereign remedy for Chest and Lung complaints. Sunflower seeds steeped, strained and sweetened with molasses will cure the Whooping Cough. Horse-mulish leaves, well bruised, and bound to the face and back of the neck, will drive away Neuralgia. And a Nutmeg core and tied around the neck, will keep it away—at least, so say many mountaineers. Onions, sliced, pounded and placed in a cloth and laid over the affected part, will draw out inflammation. A Red Onion halved and one part slightly scooped out and the cup placed over a Carbuncle or Boil will speedily remove the pus.

There are many of these similar remedies in Nature's laboratory located in the woods about the highway but they cannot be had at all times and few people know how to distinguish the different medicinal herbs from those that are poisonous and dangerous. To buy all of them from your druggist would require a great outlay of money. All the curative powers of the foregoing are combined in the new discovery—

PARACAMPH.

"First Aid to the Injured."

a scientific, safe, sure remedy for Neuralgia and Rheumatic Troubles, Bronchitis, Croup, Catarrh, Cold in the Head, Sore Throat, Earache, Croup, Coughs, Hoarseness, Tetanus, Rickets, Chills, Sore Feet, Cuts, Burns, Bruises, or any form of Swelling or Inflammation. Paracamp is conceded by medical authorities to be America's Most Reliable Household Remedy and will relieve pain quickly, if used as directed, and speedily cure.

Your dealer, the man you know and have confidence in, will cheerfully refund your money if Paracamp fails to do what we claim it will. Could anything be fairer? So don't hesitate—get a bottle of Paracamp to-day and keep it in your home. If you don't need it we will buy it back from you in three months. Sold by all good dealers in 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles. Try a 25c bottle.—The Paracamp Company, Sole Manufacturers, Louisville, Ky., U.S.A.

VERDICT OF THE PARTY

From the report of the committee on Credentials to the REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, which was unanimously adopted by that convention, June 23, 1904.

Your committee report it to be their final judgment that the convention which elected John O. Spooner, J. V. Charles, J. W. Salceonk and Emil Beensch as delegates at large, and their alternates at large, to this convention from the state of Wisconsin WAS THE REGULAR CONVENTION OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN WISCONSIN; and that the delegates elected by it are the regular elected delegates at large from the state of Wisconsin to the republican convention, and, as such, are entitled to seats in this convention.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.
A young man who recently graduated from college, complained because after eight years of preparation he was unable to find anything to do.

He compared himself to men of more ordinary equipment, who had given up school life long before the course was completed, and who seemed to be winning success in spite of limited resources.

Among his boyhood associates was a young man noted for athletics. He was a champion ball player, and left school in the freshman year to become a professional pitcher in the National League.

He had lost track of him for a number of years but had met him the day before at a circus where he was executing the high dive at ten dollars per day. The ease with which the daring feat was performed the applause that followed the well developed muscles of the performer, the lack of mental strain and the degree of success attained by his friend without education prompted the question which he was trying to answer: "Does a college education pay?"

He found upon enquiry that the young man was more than a professional athlete for he was a successful financier as well and intended soon to give up his profession and devote his life to business. His savings had accumulated and he already owned a comfortable block of stock in a good paying industry, with a position waiting for him as soon as he was ready to accept.

As he compared himself with his friend, he said: "I ought to be able to pass him in the race. I am twenty-five years old, and so far as knowledge is concerned, I possess the best that the college has to offer." But as he looked into the uncertain future in a vain effort to decide which channel he should enter the problem became more perplexing.

He had a taste for commercial life, but five dollars a week, and five years of apprenticeship was not very inviting, and the more he thought the matter over the more firmly was he convinced that in his own case at least the best years of his life had been wasted in acquiring impractical knowledge.

This is an age of specialists. An age when any young man makes a mistake, when laying the foundation for his life work, if he fails to take into account the fact that every avenue from teaching to preaching, is crowded with men of ordinary ability and that only here and there a man comes to the surface.

This is not the fault of the college but the misfortune of the graduates who recognize in a diploma a passport to success. The best equipment furnished by the best colleges in the land, is but a foundation, and too many young men are satisfied with a one-story cottage.

The secret of success lies in what a man does, and not in what he knows. The ability to apply knowledge is a greater gift than the ability to acquire it, and there is nothing theoretical about this kind of ability.

The world is not asking today, "What do you know?" but it is asking the more practical question, "What can you do?" The boy from college, as well as every other boy, is confronted with this question at the opening of his career.

The world has neither the time nor disposition to wait long for an answer. The young man who thinks he can do anything, is not in demand, but the young man who knows he can do something and then demonstrates his ability by doing it, is seldom idle.

When a diver was wanted for the circus there were no questions asked as to pedigree, or literary attainment. One effort satisfied the management that the applicant could perform the task, and the place was secured.

There was but little competition, and this is true of every calling where expert ability is required. There are hundreds of vacancies today, waiting to be filled by experts.

Much is being said nowadays about education, and while the professional educator is still troubled with aloofness, because he imagines that in some way he occupies a pedestal removed from the ordinary haunts of men, yet it is gratifying to note that theories which are heavy with age, are giving place to practical ideas and methods.

The discovery has been made and the fact recognized, that education is a larger thing than a knowledge of books, and that it is possible for a young man to be a walking encyclopedia and still be a failure as a pedestrian.

The colleges are slow to admit that the business and industrial world are in competition, and that graduates in large numbers are turned out every year, not with diplomas, but with ability to apply practical knowledge expertly.

The young man who applies for a position in other department is never asked the question, "Where did you graduate?" If he has filled a position well in a rival house, that is all the endorsement necessary, and if he has been a close student in other department, he will have plenty endorsements of this kind before he is 25 years of age.

Colleges are discovering that the most important thing in the life of a young man is his ability to become an expert in some calling, and then prepare him, as best they may for that calling.

As the age of reason and common sense advances they will go still farther, and say to boys who propose to take up commercial life: "The place for you is in the school of larger experience, behind the counter or in the office where practical knowledge is acquired at the only age when you can master it," for it is a fact that no young man from college can fill a boy's position, and unless he is called upon to fill the boy's place, he has missed the most important round in the ladder. He can't land in the middle at a single bound and he can't fill a boy's position with number nine shoes.

The university of life turns out a good many common men, and a large class of experts. It is open twelve months in the year to all comers. The young men of America are highly favored because every graduate from this great university is in demand.

EDITORIAL ORGANIZATION.
The organization of republican newspaper men, effected in Milwaukee last Thursday, will be beneficial to the party. There are 440 republican newspapers in the state, and nine-tenths of this number are in sympathy with conservative republicanism, in fact a very large majority of these papers are now supporting the ticket endorsed by the national convention, and declared by this organization to be the only republican ticket in the state.

Some publishers, as well as many republicans, are waiting for the decision of the supreme court, and their policy will not be fully determined, until after this decision is rendered. The governor's organ has already declared that the court will not influence the La Follette wing of the party, which is now in a defiant mood and ready to adopt any course which is "agin the government." This is an element of weakness which will not be endorsed by the rank and file of the party.

The republican editors of the state are with the manufacturers and business men. They are not carried away by theories, and have no use for theoretical reform. They are interested in the prosperity of the state and are in close touch with local industries.

It is well for them to organize and work together, and it is safe to say that the membership of more than 100 already enrolled, will be very largely increased before the regular meeting in September.

PRESS COMMENT

Milwaukee News: With the expenses of state government increased $1,500,000 per year after three and a half years of "reform," this hot weather is putting it on a trifle thick for "God's patient poor."

Merrill Advocate: Eight years ago the democratic candidate for president declared that tolling humanity was crushed under "a cross of gold." Statistics show that "tolling humanity" has piled up a little matter of $2,500,000,000 in gold money in the country's savings banks.

Milwaukee Sentinel: The stories about the withdrawal from the field of the republican state ticket will continue to appear at regular intervals until question time, after which preparations for inaugurating S. A. Cook as governor will begin.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Did you ever notice that people who are inclined to complain of their neighbors for having noisy children are the very ones who generally keep a piano, a gramophone, or a parrot in the house?

El Paso Herald: Like the profligate convention, that of the socialists is more properly to be classified under the head of amusement than business.

Grant County Herald: The best types of corn will not be produced in Missouri for some time, as there it pays almost as well to raise corn for plow timber as it does to raise corn as a cereal.

Denver Republican: A Chicago man wants a divorce because his wife has been in the habit of hitting him with books. But if she chose new fiction there couldn't have been anything heavy enough to hurt.

Springfield Union: George J. Gould has obtained a verdict for 6 cents against a poacher. Never having had so little money before, Mr. Gould naturally does not know what to do with it.

Chicago Record-Herald: Henry Neverthought and Fred Lovelady have succeeded in getting their names in the Chicago directory. They should be warned against the rocking of boats and some of the teachings of the Latter Day Saints.

Chicago Chronicle: If Thomas W. Lawson is really the author of the current literature attributed to him a mighty good cut-and-shash newspaper writer was lost to the world when he became a millionaire.

Chicago Inter Ocean: It is some relief to know that Mrs. Maybrick is finally free, as has so frequently been the case.

Green Bay Gazette: The Free Press uses double column space on its editorial page to quote statements made by State Senator Stout at the time of the state and national conventions. Why does it not quote his latest statement leaving the final decision to the supreme court?

Evening Wisconsin: Two Wisconsin farmers have recently been blown up while dynamiting stumps. The total eradication of stumps from a fertile field is a tempting proposition, and dynamite can do the trick with neatness and dispatch. But the potent explosive often saves work for the undertaker also, by totally eradicating the farmer.

Menasha Record: We notice that whenever a labor union, Bob La Follette or any one with a weak cause gets a decision in court it is a glorious victory, for freedom and the rights of the common people, but whenever they fail to get a decision on some unfair question of the "it's right because it's me" kind, the courts are prejudiced, bought up and should be ignored. Is there any wonder at the growth of lawlessness, including personal violence?

Grant County Witness: Considerable ill-tempered stuff is being written these days concerning the action of the national republican committee and the national republican convention declaring that the regular republican ticket is the one nominated at the Fuller opera house in Madison—is the ticket headed by S. A. Cook for governor. Does it seem reasonable to declare that the committee on credentials numbering about sixty, and the entire convention numbering about 1,000, in deciding unanimously against La Follette and his ticket, are a set of consummate rascals who sold themselves out—stultified their reputation and manhood simply to down the governor? Reasonable men cannot think so.

NOTES OF THE POLITICIANS

The Massachusetts republican state convention to nominate a state ticket will be held in Boston Oct. 7. Attorney General William H. Moody will preside.

Former Governor Morgan G. Bulkeley of Connecticut will announce his candidacy for the United States senate in an interview which will appear in the Hartford Courant.

The call for the democratic senatorial convention of the thirty-fifth Illinois district, to be held at Dixon Aug. 3, has been issued. The district is composed of Whiteside, Lee and DeKalb counties.

The notification of Henry G. Davis, the vice presidential nominee of the democratic party, will take place in West Virginia in August, probably about one week after the notification of Judge Parker.

Republicans of the thirtieth Illinois senatorial district, comprising the counties of Cass, Menard, Brown, Mason, Schuyler and Tazewell, will hold their convention at Virginia, Ill., Aug. 2 to nominate candidates.

FELL WITH BRICKS FROM SCAFFOLDING

Workman Named Manacke Had Accident at Sugar Factory—Simon Peterson Hurt Yesterday.

While pushing a wheelbarrow loaded with bricks along a scaffolding at the new beet sugar factory on Thursday, a workman named Manacke lost his footing and barrow and man were precipitated to the ground. The only serious injury sustained by the workman was a scalp wound which necessitated seven stitches. Simon Peterson, a bricklayer, fell from the scaffolding yesterday bruising his face and right knee. He was taken last night to the Palmer hospital where an examination showed that the injuries were not serious.

Lieutenant Ruggles in Chicago: Lieutenant J. A. Ruggles, U. S. A., a former Janesville young man and son of General Ruggles, has arrived in Chicago from Manila, after two years' service in the Philippines. He is the guest of his brother T. W. Ruggles, 177 North Hamlin Avenue for a few days before going to Fort Monmouth to take the examinations which will qualify him for the captaincy to which he has been promoted.

BART BALDWIN BACK FROM CINCINNATI

Where He Attended Convention of Elks—Tells of Peaceful Encounter With One of Morgan's Raiders.

B. H. Baldwin who was sent to represent Janesville Lodge No. 254, B. P. O. E., at the session of the Grand Lodge of Elks in Cincinnati this week, returned last evening with glowing accounts of the convention and the hospitality of the Ohioans and their brethren, the Kentuckians, just across the river. Mr. Baldwin says that he has attended other sessions of the Grand Lodge but that no other city has ever attempted to entertain the antiered visitors on the scale essayed by Cincinnati. There were 1,250 regularly credentialled delegates. In the convention hall from as many different cities. Edward Dvorak, 1st lieutenant of the Philippine scouts and delegate from Manila Lodge No. 751, traveled forty days over a distance of 11,000 miles to be on hand.

Fifteen Mile Parade
The big parade in which the Janesville delegate participated though compactly formed was fifteen miles in length. There were nutmeg makers from Connecticut, cotton pickers from the south, Elks in all sorts of costumes typical of the regions from which they came. The Covington lodge of "Kentucky Colonels" wearing long black coats with waistcoats and shoes of white and black slouch hats won the first prize for appearance. The cards passed out to visiting brethren by this lodge, whose home is just across the river from Cincinnati, were typical of the general spirit of hearty welcome that prevailed. They read as follows: "Visiting Brothers, Greeting—We have a spring of clear, cold water, surrounded by a bed of mint and located next to a distillery. WE ALL THIS FAIRLY. Covington lodge wants you to come over and tell them what YOU would call it."

Lavish Entertainment
Cincinnati threw gorgeous arches costing thousands of dollars across her thoroughfares. Above Fountain Square a solid canopy of colored electric lights arranged in such a manner as to constitute a gigantic American flag, amazed the visitors. Returning from a twenty mile boat trip up the Ohio river the city welcomed the sojourners after their brief absence by firing innumerable bombs from the hills. As the boat neared the wharf the passengers were greeted with a huge set of fireworks presenting a portrait of Past Exalted Ruler J. B. Fanning. Everything was carried out with the same prodigality. The keys of the city were in the hands of the visitors, and watchful eyes were even upon to anticipate every want. Did they endeavor to pay for anything they were gently reproached and refused the privilege. The city of Cincinnati had raised $50,000 for the five days' entertainment, and there was more to be had where that came from.

An Incident of The War
Mr. Baldwin chanced one day to be strolling through Covington with a young man anxious to point out to him all the places of interest. It was familiar ground to the Janesville man but he said nothing until they came to a suspension bridge which his companion informed him had been built to supplant the old structure that Morgan's raiders crossed in '63, with the Northern "Johnnies" in hot pursuit. "Now you must remember that you broached the subject of the Civil War and you mustn't take offense," said the Janesville man. "I was one of the fellows who were following those raiders, being with the 14th Illinois Cavalry under Gen. Wolford." The young Kentuckian was delighted with the opportunity to learn further particulars. Later on he pointed out the steps of the bank where the Goebel tragedy occurred and regarding the previous conversation remarked that the president of the bank, Thomas L. Helms, had been with Morgan and was a member of Basil Duke's Second Kentucky Cavalry. Mr. Baldwin waited to hear no further but sprang quickly up the steps and entered the bank. Learning the whereabouts of the bank president's office he opened the door, entered and addressing the occupant of the room informed him that he had a warrant for his arrest.

Pursuer and Pursued
Mr. Helms expressed surprise and asked for particulars. Whereupon he was reminded of his escape in July, forty-one years ago, from the hands of The Union Cavalry. Mr. Baldwin insisting that the right to capture still persisted. The door was locked by the banker and throughout the long afternoon the two men discussed the incidents of the pursuit. Mr. Helms told of being dismounted by a pitched battle and getting his coat full of bullet holes without sustaining a wound of any kind, and the conversation finally drifted off to the respective demerits of the northern and southern military prisons. When Mr. Baldwin described the rations meted out and the general appointments of Andersonville, where he spent several months, the banker acknowledged that the south had the north beaten on that score. The war belonged to the long ago and the two men who had once been engaged on either side of a deadly conflict got on famously together. Mr. Helms assured his visitor that he had long been a loyal Union man. The Spanish war had effaced forever whatever lingering resent ment might have entered.

Fire Loss Adjusted
The recent fire loss in the barber shop of W. E. Watts, on South Main street, was adjusted and settled in full yesterday. The policy was carried with the Tontine Insurance company of New Orleans, represented by Scott & Sherman.

CURRENT NEWS NOTES

LURED HERE BY GAZETTE "SPECIAL"

Robert Simpson of Morristown, N. J., Chooses Janesville for Future Home After Reading "Beet Sugar Edition."

Mrs. Robert Simpson and three children of Morristown, New Jersey, arrived in Janesville last evening and are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. James Mills. Mr. Simpson came here from New Jersey a month ago and has decided to make his permanent residence here. Prior to his departure from Morristown he had lived there sixteen years and latterly had been administrator of a large estate. The latter had been sold and it was his intention to return to Scotland when he became interested in Janesville through a copy of the Gazette's beet sugar special, forwarded by Dr. Mills. He came here to see if the city was as good as it looked on paper and was very much pleased with what he found. Mrs. Simpson is a relative of Dr. Mills and Mrs. MacGregor.

Earl Doty and his associate in the new enterprise of providing a summer theater for Janesville concluded the preliminary arrangements for leasing the park at the foot of South Main street late yesterday afternoon and carpenters and wire stringers will be set at work Monday. A stage will be built at one end of the pavilion and lights will be strung throughout the grounds. The first performance will be given a week from Monday evening.

SAY LINE WILL SOON BE BUILT

Milton Junction Paper States Authority for Its Statement as to Interurban.

The prospects for the new interurban line from Janesville to Madison are again looking brighter, says the Milton Junction Telephone, owing to a statement by the promoters that the actual work of construction will begin within a few weeks. Although no choice of routes has yet been announced it is more than likely that the advantage of the company by embracing these villages and the liberality of our people in regard to it will lead them to choose this route. It is thought that about a year will suffice to put the line in running order.

HOW TO REACH THE SHOW GROUNDS

On Tuesday Next Be Sure And Attend The Great And Glorious Pike at The Golf Club House.

That there may be no mistaken ideas regarding the Pike next Tuesday at the Mississippi Golf grounds, the management wish it distinctly understood that this grand exhibition is open to everyone. The street cars will run until one o'clock at night and each street car will be met by plenty of busses who will carry all passengers from the end of the car line to the grounds. Advice from Madison indicate that an excursion will come from that city. The fame of Janesville and Janesville people as enterprising has been spread abroad. The Pike will be better than the Nonesuch circus and everyone said that it was the best ever seen in this part of the country.

The moving pictures, the wonderful horse head in which his tail ought to be a genuine wonder, the petrified lady, the famous Moonette the flying lady, the cane rackets, the nigger baby game, the wonderful sea and land monsters, all simply illustrate what a gigantic world it has been to collect this great aggregation together for this great exhibition. "Hike, the Pike." Take any street car and they will land you at the busses when it is a few minutes' ride to the show grounds. As the program says it is an aggregation of allegoric, paretoric and panoramic attractions gathered from all corners of the world.

FUR TO FLY AT YOST'S TOMORROW

City League Baseball Team of Chicago Will Give Janesville Fastest Game of Season.

For some weeks past the teams that have lined up against the Janesville nine at Yost's park have been "too easy" for the fans. The management decided that on the coming Sunday they would provide a team that would make the locals earn their spurs in the hardest contest offered in this section of the country this year. Negotiations were opened with the City League team of Chicago, winners of last year's pennant and the most promising candidates for the coveted ribbon this year. The Chicago men were also looking for a hard game, having had things their own way thus far and when it was explained to them that Janesville had a rattling good team that had not yet met its equal they agreed to come. Ladies will be admitted to the grounds without charge, as usual, and the cars will run every half hour. There is little doubt but that the biggest crowd that has visited Yost's park this season will be on hand to watch the fur fly tomorrow. Order will be preserved in the park and the outing "where the cool breezes blow" will be an ideal one.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Eines and Misses Anna and Jennie Cooley return to their home in Chicago this evening, being called here to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. Kate Cooley.

SOCIETY.

APPRECIATE THE THE KINDNESS

G. A. R. Passes Resolutions Thanking Superintendent William Murphy.

Last evening at the regular meeting of the William Sargent post of the G. A. R. the following resolution regarding the action of Manager Murphy of the Janesville street car line was passed. Mr. Murphy's kindness to the old soldiers who fought during the dark days of the sixties is appreciated by not only the old soldiers themselves but by all their friends. It is a bit of recognition that is due to the veterans and one which they heartily appreciate. The following is the resolution passed:

Headquarters, Post No. 20, Dept. of Wis., Grand Army Republic.
Janesville, Wis., July 22, 1904.
Preamble and Resolution Offered by Past Commander E. G. Harlow.

William Murphy, manager of the Janesville Street Ry. Co., who by his indefatigable energy and public spirit, has brought the service of said railway to a point equal to facilities in his possession, and thereby has received the patronage of an ever discerning and appreciative public, to a point never before reached in the history of this railway company.

His selections and discipline of intelligent and gentlemanly conductors and motormen, is a prominent feature in the service.

Running on schedule time is another adjunct in the service, and in this feature of public convenience, it would be brought to further perfection, except for unavoidable accidents and further unavoidable hindrances at the railroad crossing.

This tribute is made in conjunction with resolution attacked.

On last Memorial day, Manager Murphy in his unassuming and dignified manner, characteristic of a gentleman, addressed representatives of the post, in the following words: "Gentlemen: Hereafter on Memorial day or on any funeral occasion, represented by the Grand Army of the Republic, please call on me for one or more cars for transportation to and from the cemetery, and they shall be placed at your disposal free of any cost."

Thanks and salutations were extended to Mr. Murphy at that time. On Thursday, on the occasion of the funeral of our lamented comrade, Joseph H. Green, this post availed themselves of the kindly and generous offer made to us on Memorial day by Mr. Murphy, and cars were furnished free of any expense, affording us ample transportation of and exclusive unannoying nature.

Resolved: Wherefore be it resolved by this post now in regular session that we extend to Manager Murphy our profound thanks and the G. A. R. cheer for the unexpected and unusual courtesy extended to us, and that the adjutant be instructed to furnish a copy of this preamble and resolution to Manager William Murphy.

Official:
C. D. CHILD,
Post Adjutant.

CHAPTER IV.

HILLYER went out into the starlight night and made his way back to the business portion of the town. He was about to pass the barroom run by Luke Hillhouse, when he heard the clucking
of a hen and the rapping of a door.
He looked in at the screened door. Two countrymen, without their coats and under broad slouched hats, were playing at the green table, over which hung
a glass lamp under a tin shade constructed from a new dishpan with a hole cut in the bottom, and three or four half drunken negroes were engaged in betting small amounts on a fortune wheel against the wall. Seeing the merchant, Hillhouse, a fat, red faced man with a dyed and waxed mustache, came round to him from behind the counter.

"Lookin' for George, I'll bet," he said in a friendly, half confidential tone. "He's just gone, squire." Hillyer had years before been a justice of the peace. "I went with 'im clean to the door of the warehouse an' seed that he went in."

"Then he was?"
"The worst I ever seed, squire. Oh,
he could walk all right an' knowed
what he was about, but he's a reg'lar rippin' terror. He come in here, I reckon, about an hour ago an' tuck a couple o' drinks an' then set down over thar at the little table. I 'lowed he was asleep, he was so quiet, an' I reckon everybody else did. For Bascom Truitt from over in the mountains
come in an' begin to talk about old man 'Buckley's sentence. He hadn't said a word that was wrong, but George heard it an' riz suddenly an'
come up to him. 'Yo're a-sayin' that to insult me,' he said, right in Truitt's face. As big as Truitt is you could
'a' knocked 'im down with a feather,
but he told George as straight as he could that he never knowed he was thar an' didn't mean no harm nollow;
but, sir, George hauled away an' lit
'im in the jaw. It popped like the report of a pistol, an' Truitt mighty well went down. We parted 'em without any trouble. In fact, Truitt thinks the world an' 'all of 'im. George did 'im a favor a long time back, an' instead o'
glittin' mad about it Truitt is worryin' over offendin' the boy. He would have apologized to 'im, but we all persuaded 'im to wait till George was at his seat."

The merchant took a long, trembling
breath.

"I wish, Hillhouse," he said, "that you wouldn't let 'im have any more liquor if you kin git around it."

"Git around it?" laughed the bar-keeper. "If you'll show me a mixer o'
drinks in this county that would refuse that feller when he's off I'd like to see 'im. It would cost 'im his life.
He's one man, squire, that orn't to tetch a drop, an' between you an' me
I don't think anything but this scrape
of his daddy's would have started 'im.
George Buckley is the high strung sort that makes either the finest citizens or the scum o' creation."

"I reckon yo're right," agreed Hillyer, and, turning, he went down to the warehouse, which was in the next block below. He found the front door ajar and saw a light burning in his clerk's room in the rear. Entering and softly treading over the rough floor, which was strewn with chaff and grain and the metal ties of cotton bales, Hillyer stood in the doorway of the young man's room. In a cloud of clear smoke George Buckley sat near
a little table, without his coat, his collar off and his powerful neck showing through his open shirt. He glared up at his employer and then rose to his feet and looked straight at him.

"George," the old man began in a voice that quivered through excessive embarrassment, "I was troubled so much about you that I couldn't sleep,
so I got up an' come down. I seed
you light an' couldn't keep from comin' in."

"I don't see that you need bother
about me," was Buckley's surprising
reply. "I'm no blood kin of yours,
Mr. Hillyer."

"George, I'm as good a friend to you
as I know how to be, an' I just want you to know that, an' of thar's any way under the sun that I kin help you I'll do it."

"Then let's me 'n' you come to an understanding," said Buckley. "I don't know exactly how to size you up. I've been thinking about you all this evening, and if I don't understand you better than I have done for several years you and I will part. You can keep the money I've made and saved up, and if I can't let I'll throw the education
you gave me in your face. My intelligence has been insulted. You have done all these things for me under the pretense of love, but it was not that.
Now let's understand each other."

Hillyer turned as white as death could have made him. His eyes sank to the floor, and with a halting step,
he went to the young man's bed across the room and sat down on the edge of it.

"You do me a great wrong, George,"
he faltered. "If you knowed my heart—"

"Well, that's all I'm asking. I want to know what it all means. I tell you I'm no fool. It's not wisd'm in me talking either, for I've puzzled over it for years, an' now that this thing has happened—an' I don't care whether I stay in your town anyway—I'm goin'
to be told the truth. What did you give me my education for, and this start in the world? Why, as I look at you gazing at me now it seems to me you are the very personification

of the fate that has mocked me ever since
I was old enough to know I was alive.
Curse it, what's the matter with you?
Can't you talk?"

Hillyer rose to his feet. "I'm goin'
to leave you, George," he said. "Tomorrow we'll talk this over. You are in no condition to—"

Taking a swift, steady stride forward, the young man laid his hands on the merchant's shoulders and forced him back to his seat on the bed. "No," he said; "you don't leave here tonight
until you have answered my question
and satisfied me."

Hillyer leaned forward, his face in his hands, and groaned.

"Then, George, I'll be obliged to speak of something that has not passed my lips in thirty years, but maybe it is best for me to do it, considerin' everything. Set down. I kin talk better if you won't stand so close an' look at me so straight. You've had yore trouble, an' of you have the heart I think you have you'll be sorry for me, an' me an' you maybe will be truer friends in the future. Git me time. I'll git it out."

George Buckley threw himself into the chair at the table. There was a pause. A train passed on the track within twenty yards of the rear door
of the warehouse, and the door shook.
A pistol shot was heard, followed by the yelping of a wounded dog at the other end of the street. The town slept.

"George," began the merchant in a strange husky voice, "you are now meetin' the biggest trouble of yore whole life. I was just about yore age,
an' everything was about as promisin',
when my trouble overtook me, George."
—the old man gulped—"did you ever hear that—killed a feller jest at the close of the war?"

Buckley stared steadily, his brows raised.

"I think—yes, I knew about it. But I didn't think you—" The young man seemed unable to formulate his thoughts into words. "I knew you were acquitted and that nobody blamed
you."

"Yes, I was acquitted, but how—ah,
how? You wonder why you was se-

"I—killed a feller jest at the close of the war."

lected to go through yore present trial,
an' I've wondered many an' many a time why mine was put on me. The whole world thinks I don't bother about it, but few folks know about the vermin that's gnawin' at the secret souls of their neighbors. Why, my own wife don't know my feelin's. I reckon she thinks I'm as happy as the average man. That's the trouble with jest—jest that sort of a thing. It kin't tell folks will dare mention to the person concerned, an' somehow he never kin bring it up. I said I'd never let it mention to me, but I did about five year ago. I'd been makin'
a sort of a pet of a little, yaller linn'd child stoppin' at the Johnston house with her ma fer the summer, an' one day, settin' up thar in the office, I tuck fer on my knee. She sorter squirmed off, an' when I asked, 'er what was the matter she said she'd heard I'd killed a man. It set me back so that I didn't detch 'er, an' she looked scared ever time I passed whar she was at. Huh!
Talk about trouble, George, yore'n hain't a crenstance! I had jest got married, an' ever'thing looked bright.

"It was at an election. The feller was a friend o' mine, but a few years younger. We was on opposite sides an' had sharp words. The lie was passed, an' then we come together.
Some of the crowd parted us, but I was a ragin' demon. I was a drinkin' man then—that is, I took a dram occasionally—an' I got full an' went home fer
a revolver. Then I set out to find 'im.
It was about 10 o'clock at night when I run across 'im at a livery stable, a old shack at 'other end o' the town.
He was in the back end with Hank Williams, the man that run it, an' I heard 'im tellin' Hank good night an' seed 'im a-comb. I didn't know what I was a-doin'—as God is my judge, I didn't. I hated 'im with the hate of hell, an' I wanted—I wanted 'im out of the way. I drewed as he come nigh, an' I think I cursed 'im. I remember he was a-gazin' right at me scared—scared mighty nigh out o' his gusses. He raised his han's sorter,

like a body wintin' ward on anything,
but the revolver was aimed right, an'
cocked an' easy on trigger, an' it went off."

Hillyer paused. His hands were folded one in the other, and both were quivering. George Buckley was staring at him with bewildered ditty, his long, slender hand stayed in his heavy hair.

"I'm sorter scared at the sound o' my own voice," said Hillyer. "It's like somebody else was a-tellin' about it.
I hain't even whispered it to myself.
An' in all my prayers in regard to it I never have spoke his name or the name of the crime. I always said, 'You know what I mean, Lord. Show me how to unload it.' Well"—Hillyer swallowed—"the fell died in his tracks. I was sober in a second. I heard Williams a-comb, an' when he seed me an' the smokin' pistol an' my deed he gave a little cry an' started to break an' run,
but I throwed the revolver down an'
called to 'im an' begged 'im not to leave. Then I stood in a boss stall
while he went an' examined—the body.
I couldn't tetch it. Then he come back to me an' told me Lynn Hamblight was a corpse. Thar was a pile o' dirty hay in the stall, an' I remember I jest fell on it, face downward, an' began to cry an' beg the Lord to save me."

"Williams had a heart like a child's.
He stood thar an' watched an' listened to my rayvin's of fear an' regret till
at once he begun tryin' to pacify me.
He told me I'd come clear; that it was in self defense; that he had seed it all an' would go on the stand an' testify in my behalf. I know now—in fact,
I knowed when I heard him on the stand
—that he was lyin' to save my neck,
but I wanted to escape the penalty an'
couldn't 'a' stopped 'im. The fear o' meetin' my God was awful. I wasn't even jalled. It was in unsettled times jest after the war. My folks was prominent, an' public sympathy fer me, young as I was, was high. The hardest thing of all to bear was the grief of Hamblight's mother. It looked like it ud mighty nigh kill 'er. He was her youngest an' pet. Her other boys never amounted to anything an' had gone west an' left 'er. Finally I come clear in the eyes of the world, but, as God knows, not in my own. That crime is before me, wakkin' or sleepin'. I often dream that I never done it, an' daylight gives that the lie. Seemed like ever'thing I went into turned out money, an' I prospered, though I did all I could to alleviate sufferin' an' help
the different churches. Mrs. Ham-blight jest had a little farm over in the mountains that turned out a bare livin, an' I sent a friend to 'er to offer her help, but she indignantly refused
it. She'd come in town once in awhile, but she'd never come nigh whar I was at. Then I heard she was tryin' to git
a pension through congress. Her husband had claimed to be a Union man,
an' that he was forced into the Confederate ranks, whar he fit an' was killed, an' somebody told 'er she was entitled to a pension. Old Truitt tuck up the claim an' writ on about it to Washington, an' one day he happened to tell me that he had had a final decision an' that she couldn't git it an'
that he hated to have to tell 'er the outcome. Then I got him to pretend to her that the pension was allowed, an' I paid the $15 a month. I've been doin' it fer twenty year now, an' it has kept 'er from sufferin', but I'm in mortal dread o' her findin' out whar
the money comes from an' sellin' her place to repay it. She's still in good health over thar in the mountains.

About once a year, generally in the fall, she comes in town, but she shirks meetin' me. Somehow I always breathe freer when she's gone out o' town.
The sight of 'er fetches it all back worse than anything else. I've tried to find out what she thinks about it now,
but she never mentions the subject to a soul. I've suffered the torments of the damned. I made a public confession in meetin', as well as I could, to show my contrition without implicatin'
Hank Williams, but it didn't do a speck
o' good. All the members swarmed round me and patted me on the back an' said I was nigh the throne, but thar's puts jest seemed to beat my guilt deeper in. I was afeard o' the slightest sound at night or my shadow in daytime an' was always countin' on bein' tuck off by disease. One mornin', in shavin', I noticed a little red spot
on my cheek an' tuck it fer a cancer.
I was shore then that the Lord intended to make me die a slow, lonthome death, an' all at once I felt weak at the knees an' couldn't hardly stand. My wife come an' found me. I didn't tell her about my cancer, an' she thought I was jest sick from somethin' I'd eat,
an' when the doctor come I was afeard to tell 'im about the sore place. He left some medicine, an' I made out like I tuck it, but I throwed it away. After that I'd make a point to stop an' talk to 'im every day to see if he'd notice
my face an' speak of it, but he didn't.
I've started up to his office fifty times
an' backed out, jest becase I couldn't bear to be told that it was a cancer.
Howsomever, one day, when it was more inflamed than ever, I went to his office—as weak as a sick kitten, feelin'
jest like a man goin' to the scaffold.
I went in an' set down an' waited fer
'im to git through with somebody else,
an' when he turned to me I said, 'Doc,
I want you to take a look at my face.'

He put on his specks an' examined it;
then he laughed an' said: 'I'll bet a dollar
you thought it was a cancer. Folks nowadays is more anxious to false cancers 'an they are good taters.' 'But hain't it?' I axed 'im. 'No,' said he, 'it hain't nothin' o' the sort. Ef you'll quit rubbin' it every minute in the day
an' stop thinkin' about it, it'll go away in a week.' I felt as light as a feather when I left him, but it wasn't twenty-four hours 'fore I had some other ail-

"I was always lookin' fer the Lord to show desens an' me. For one thing, no children come to me 'n' Martha, an' I interpreted that as meanin'
that, since I'd put life out o' the world,
I shouldn't tetch it. In most married folks worry when they hain't got some offspring, but it worried me powerful.
I never seed a happy child or a proud mother an' father without feelin' the low's remorse. An' George, George, I've led the most awful life that was ever led by a human bein'. It seems to me—an' I kept it all to myself, smilin'

along with the rest, an' tryin' to find some loophole of escape. Now here's whar you come in, an' you'll think it odd, but I've started in to explain in full, an' I'm goin' to do it. You know I used to pass yore pa's place pretty often, goin' to my river mill an' farm,
an' at the mill I frequently seed you
comin' that way-backed old mare,
a-straddle of yore bag o' shelled corn,
barefooted even in winter, with yore
hands an' feet cracked with the cold.
It was common report about how bad
you was treated by yore daddy an'
what a awful character he had. Maybe you remember the talk me 'n' you had, an' how you told me how anxious you was to git schollin' an' books.
That was the first day after my crime
that I got a beam of spiritual light. It come all over me like a flash that ef I could take you out'n yore degradation
an' raise you to a respectable, useful place in life I could atone in part for what I'd done. Do you remember that day, George?"

A FACT PROVEN.

Should Convince Even the Most Skeptical of Its Truth.

If there is the slightest doubt in the minds of any that Dandruff germs do not exist, their belief is compelled by the fact that a rabbit inoculated with the germs became bald in six weeks' time.
It must be apparent to any person
therefore that the only prevention of baldness is the destruction of the germ,
which act is successfully accomplished in one hundred per cent. of cases by the application of Newbro's Herpicide.
Dandruff is caused by the same germ
which causes baldness and can be prevented with the same remedy—Newbro's Herpicide.

THE GREATEST EPPOH OF MARRIAGE

The first is the most crucial time.
If for the first time the greatest event in your married lives is about to occur, how expectant, how wrapt
up in it you find yourselves.

You try to overlook, but in vain,
that element of uncertainty and danger that you have been led to expect from the experience of those mothers and fathers who have struggled through this ordeal in ignorance of

Mother's Friend

what it is, and what it does.

If at this time every expectant man and wife might know of this greatest of boons, devised for the express purpose of alleviating and dispelling
the suffering and consequent danger of childbirth, how quickly would all doubt and worry be dissipated.

Mother's Friend is an invaluable liniment for external massage, through whose potent agency countless mothers have been enabled to experience
the joy of parturition for the first time without danger to themselves or their off-spring.

Art Development...

Is Very Marked. & &

The love for art in all things is developing. This is particularly noticeable in printing matter.

We find that the very people who ten years or more ago were satisfied with any dabby, sneaky, tarry kind of printed matter—anything—the ugliest types, the worst conglomeration of arrangement, so long as it was black on white paper, are the best judges and the most particular people today. You know differently now
—we do anyway.

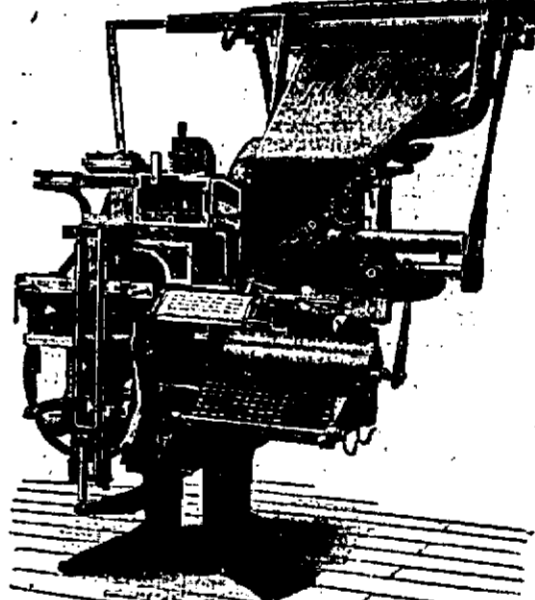

It is a question of harmony of

Color, Typography and Paper that stamp approval on your Printed Matter.

Whether a card, letter head, hand bill, folder, booklet, or catalogue, the artistic sense has been educated to demand that which is tasteful.

We all develop with the times, if we are progressive.

The Printing Department of The Gazette is Progressive.

It has developed and is growing more and more with the advance of the printer's art. We cleaned out long ago the ugly types; threw out old ideas; brought together material, machinery and men of advanced ideas and tastes into one union of harmony.

The simple piece of type execution receives the care that satisfies the man of artistic tastes, the same as the intricate two and three color runs.

Proof of good work in the samples of printed matter of every description which are here to see. We guarantee the same grade of work which comes from the best establishments any where and at the same time save some of the expenditure to you. We want to figure on any and all classes of printing and can assure you of an interesting estimate.

Orfordville, July 22.—Mr. John Saylor is on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Haugen enjoyed a visit with their son Albert, of Rugby, N. D., last Sunday.

Mr. Tews, of Plymouth, and Miss Myrtle Barker, of Newark, spent Sunday at Anna Corbett's.

Miss Tom Kelley went to White-water last Saturday to visit her sisters, Mamie and Jessie, over Sunday.

Messrs. W. F. Gavey and Tom Corbett went to Evansville last Saturday where they purchased a merry-go-round of Mr. Hahbeck. They will point it and fix it up and have it running in the village in about two weeks. They went to Evansville after it on Wednesday.

Mrs. J. L. Hammill visited friends in Beloit last Sunday.

Mrs. George Turner, nee Rossiter, of Donly, Minn., is visiting at B. G. Hungerford's and other friends and relatives.

Mrs. Robert Hartshorn, of Beloit, and Mrs. M. Hartshorn, of Clinton, visited at J. M. Cleveland's, last week.

Mrs. H. C. Theyer, of Maringo, Ill., is visiting her daughter, Mrs. John Gavey.

H. D. Hendrick, deputy for the fraternal Reserve association organized a lodge of about 30 members at the Odd Fellows' hall on Thursday evening of last week. They will hold their meetings on the last Thursday evening of each month, and on next Thursday evening ice cream will be served to all members.

Mr. D. E. Rooster, of Milwaukee, is visiting his mother and other relatives and friends in the village. Mrs. Rooster expects to come next week.

F. E. Purdy says he is very well pleased with the manly and honorable way he was used by the Woodman Accident association in payment of his claim for injury received June

5, and recommends the company to all those who think of taking accident insurance.

A number from here are attending the Monona Lake assembly.

TOWN OF ROCK.

Town of Rock, July 20.—Verily, the farmer believes in "making hay while the sun shines," for he has been busy for the past week or two caring for his hay crop. In most cases haying is completed and harvesting has begun.

Mr. and Mrs. James Burns, of Janesville, were callers in this vicinity recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Mikkelsen were Milton Junction visitors week before last.

A merry party of ladies invaded the home of Mrs. Burr W. Tolles not long ago and spent a pleasant afternoon. Tea was served at six o'clock, freshly picked strawberries and "real country cream" being the chief attractions. This is the second of a series of visits they have paid Mrs. Tolles, the other having been made a year ago in "strawberry time." Those who composed the party were: Mesdames Marion Stoddard, Dell Watson, Francis Dopp, Mae Nicholson, Alice Merrill, Hattie Blanchard, Helen McDonald, Annie Parrish, Josie Hankey, Luella Stout, Nevada Conroy and Miss Alice Chase of Janesville, and Mrs. Eva Olin, of Madison.

Edward Timmons is spending his vacation on his father's farm near the city.

Er. Podewell attended the excursion to Milwaukee Sunday.

The many friends of Miss Mary Patterson will be pleased to learn that her health is steadily improving under the efficient care of the physicians at the Madison Sanitarium.

Mrs. Albert Remer paid a visit to Shopiere last week.

The weed commissioner paid his annual visit to this community the first of last week.

Mr. Vohlan is now hauling milk to John Sauter instead of to the creamery.

Monday was Earl Patterson's birthday and he celebrated by giving a party, to a number of his young friends.

Messrs. Bugas have rented the hay land of Mr. Reger.

Mr. Marsh and Roy Wright, of Janesville, were haying here last week.

Mrs. Viola Taylor, of De Pere, Wis., Mrs. Harry Hammond and little daughter, Louella, of Green Bay, and Mrs. M. J. Conroy, of Janesville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Burr Tolles a few days last week.

The Misses Nellie and Little Hollis were callers in this neighborhood Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Bligham and granddaughter Ruth, of Beloit, who have been spending the past few weeks at the home of Nelson Mikkelsen, left for their home Monday morning.

Harry de Jean, representative of the Wilson Laboratory, Edgerton, paid a call here Tuesday.

A guest of Mr. and Mrs. Burr Tolles Sunday.

Messrs. Raymond and Harvey Mikkelsen have been spending a few days with their brother, Wallace, helping him hay.

All is quiet at the State School for the Blind, and it seems lonely now that the children are gone.

CROPS AID FALL TRADE

Prospects Are Bright for a Large Volume of Business.

New York.—H. G. Dunn & Co.'s weekly review of trade today says:

"Early trading factors are predominating. Little definite increase is seen in the distribution of merchandise, but developments of the last week promise better things in the near future. The most important influence for good is brighter crop prospects.

In the principal manufacturing branches there is still much idle machinery, especially at cotton mills and iron plants, while most widow glass producers will not resume until September. Reports of railway earnings for July so far show only a small loss of 1 1/2 per cent as compared with the same period last year.

It is gratifying to note in dispatches from iron and steel making centers that the decline in quotations has ceased and rumors are making inquiries which promise to result in considerable business.

In so far as actual contracts are concerned the past week was probably the dulliest thus far this year, yet the tone appears to be distinctly better, and signs of growing confidence are most encouraging.

In the textile markets the most important event is the decision of operatives at Fall River to go on strike next Monday against the reduction of 12 per cent in wages. Considering the fact that there is little demand and stocks of goods are ample for current needs, it is probable that the trade will not be seriously affected.

In the woolen goods division the chief feature was the opening of new lines of men's wear at moderate advances.

Footwear factories in New England are busy on contracts for fall delivery and there is a brisk demand for heavy lines. Hides were strengthened by the packing-house difficulty, particularly July saltings, of which the supply is small.

Failures of the week numbered 213 in the United States, against 191 last year, and twenty in Canada, compared with nineteen a year ago.

HOLDS BOUCK'S WILL IS VALID

Oshkosh Judge Decides That Undue Influence Claim is Baseless.

Oshkosh, Wis., July 23.—In the contest of the will of Col. Gabriel Bouck Judge C. D. Cleveland of the probate court decided that the evidence did not show that any undue influence had been exerted on the decedent by any of his relatives or anyone else and that the will which he drew as his last testament was that which expressed his wishes. The judge admitted the will to probate. Attorney George Hilton was named as executor without bonds.

TRIPLE MURDER FOR PLUNDER

Grain Broker, It is Said, May Have Been Slain by Robbers.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 23.—At the request into the suicide of E. T. Washburn, the grain broker, who is supposed to have killed his wife and daughter, it was intimated that Washburn did not commit the double murder and suicide. Some of his money which he drew from the bank before the tragedy cannot be accounted for.

WORTH A THOUGHT.

This Statement Will Interest Scores of Janesville Readers.

The facts given below are worth a perusal by all who are anxious about their physical condition or are similarly situated to this resident of Beloit. It is a local occurrence and can be thoroughly investigated.

Mr. J. E. Flint, of 876 11th street Beloit, Miller at the Blodgett Mfg. Co., says: "I had pain in my back for about two years. Although I was not laid up and unable to work, still the dull tired aching while at work was disagreeable and inconvenient. Standing and walking about aggravated it, or if I sat in one position any length of time my back became very stiff. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills in one of our papers and as they were especially recommended for such complaints I got a box. They soon took the pain and soreness out of my back and kidneys. They reached the spot at once."

Plenty more proof like this from Janesville people. Call at the Peoples' Drug store and ask what their customers report.

MILWAUKEE FOR NEXT MEETING

Delegates of G. U. G. G. Conclude Session in Janesville—Big Banquet Last Night.

Over one hundred and twenty-five ladies and gentlemen sat down to the elaborate banquet prepared for the G. U. G. G. delegates at West Side Odd Fellows' hall last evening. August Wetzel acted as toastmaster and kept the speakers and banqueters in good humor during the progress of the feast. The first to respond to his call was Joseph Hauck, for the fourth time elected president of the association.

John Rehfeld, president of Bower City Verela No. 21, was next. C. E. Hermann of Janesville was called upon for a solo and responded in a manner all his own. Carl Pabst, president of the Concordia Singing society, followed. A Mondschein duet by Hanaska and Janel pleased everyone present. Peter Neumes of Janesville, Martin Theln of Milwaukee, Carl Brockhaus of Janesville, spoke briefly. Prof. Thiele rendered several instrumental selections including "Die Wacht Am Rhein." Haderzski March, and the Marsellaise. Ignatz Wetzel, secretary of the Central Verela, G. U. G. G., was called upon and the Concordia Singing society which had been called upon at frequent intervals during the evening gave a series of selections which were much appreciated. The banquet was closed with some fitting remarks by the toastmaster and cheers given for the local organizations, the G. U. G. G., and the ladies. Many of the delegates left for their homes this morning. The next convention is to be held in Milwaukee commencing on August 15 next year. The annual picnic will be held in Schlitz park, Milwaukee, on August 21, this year.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Joseph Hauck.
Vice president—Chas. Holdmann.
Treasurer—Chas. Stripling.
Secretary—Ignatz Wetzel.
Chaplain—M. Thiele.
Gulke—Wm. Kloth.
Watch—Mr. Anderson, all of Milwaukee.

OUR CANDIDATE

Insurance Commissioner—W. C. Roenitz, Sheboygan.

William C. Roenitz of Sheboygan, candidate for insurance commissioner, was born of German parents in the city of Sheboygan in the year 1865. Receiving a common school education, he immediately went into the insurance business, distinguishing himself in the state as an authority on insurance matters. He has been in the insurance business for twelve years and has served as secretary of the Sheboygan Mutual Savings, Loan and Building association, the largest institution of its kind in the state. He has been faithful to his constituents as supervisor on the Sheboygan county board, serving for four years, being endorsed by republicans and democrats alike.

RUSSIA WILL RELEASE BRITISH STEAMSHIP

Awaits Verification That the Mark of the Government Is on the Alleged Packages of Contraband.

London, July 23.—In accordance with instructions from Foreign Minister Lansdowne, it is reported that Count Benckendorff, the Russian ambassador to Great Britain, has informed Foreign Secretary Lansdowne that immediately upon the establishment of the presence of the broad arrow—the British government mark—upon the munitions on board the seized steamer Malacca, and the fact that no other cargo of a contraband character is on board that vessel, she will be released.

In response to this notification, Lord Lansdowne is said to have assured Count Benckendorff that all the boxes marked with the broad arrow were the property of the British government, and the secretary added that he had been informed by the Peninsular and Oriental company, the owners of the Malacca, that there was no contraband on board, a statement which the British government accepted because of the standing of the company. Russia is now awaiting a verification of the company's statement on the ground that fraud might have occurred and shipments of contraband substituted for goods declared on the manifest. How and where this point will be determined has not been announced, but Count Benckendorff, it is said, has given the heartiest assurances to Lord Lansdowne of the desire of the Russian government to settle the dispute in an amicable spirit, and no difficulty in arranging this detail is expected. Nevertheless, the British government regrets the delay in releasing the ship, fearing further public excitement.

It is reported that the Russian re-fly makes no reference to the general question of the Dardanelles. The Russian diplomats here excuse the action of the commander of the St. Petersburg in seizing the Malacca on the ground that he had no idea of the significance of the broad arrow.

GEORGIA LAWMAKERS IN FISTIC ENCOUNTER

Two Members of the Legislature Knock Each Other Down and Pistols Are Talked Of.

Atlanta, Ga., July 23.—A duel may follow an encounter between two members of the Georgia legislature in representative hall. The two men, Steed and Buchanan, have had trouble for several days over a pending bill, and the trouble culminated when Buchanan called Steed a "knave and a liar."

Steed instantly seized a big ink well and hurled it at Buchanan. The ink well caught Buchanan squarely in the face, cutting a deep gash and almost knocking him down. Buchanan then knocked Steed down with a copy of the revised statutes.

A rough and tumble fight followed, in which other legislators joined. Then some cried: "He's going to shoot," and the crowd scattered.

Steed and Buchanan are in the hands of their friends and it is said unless an adjustment is reached there will be a duel or a street fight.
